Indiana University Press Series on Israel

Building on years of experience with the journal Israel Studies and related publications (An Israel Studies Book), Indiana University Press is expanding its commitment to this area by launching a new monograph series. Like the journal and its related books, these volumes will represent groundbreaking multidisciplinary scholarship on Israeli history, politics, society, and culture. Temporal boundaries will extend to the pre-state period, although emphasis will be placed on the State of Israel. Due recognition may also be given to events and phenomena in diaspora communities as they affect the Israeli state and society. This new series is sponsored by the Ben-Gurion Research Institute for the Study of Israel and Zionism at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev and the Schusterman Center for Israel Studies at Brandeis University.

We invite proposals of original and previously unpublished research in all fields of the humanities and social sciences relevant to the study of modern Israel.

SUBMISSION AND MANUSCRIPT GUIDELINES – WHAT TO INCLUDE

Send a book prospectus rather than a full-length manuscript. This will allow us to quickly assess our interest in your work. Inform us if your manuscript is being considered simultaneously by another press. Manuscripts should be submitted in English.

WHAT TO INCLUDE WITH YOUR SUBMISSION:

A cover letter outlining:

- The current state of the manuscript and expected date of completion.
- The contribution and innovation of your manuscript.
- How your book differs from others in the field. Include details of the most relevant titles, indicating their relative strengths and weaknesses.
- Central themes, concepts and ideas that your manuscript develops.
- Total expected length of the manuscript.

REVIEW PROCESS

If we decide that your project is appropriate for the new series we will seek, at a minimum, two external reviews. To allow for careful consideration of a project, we give our readers six to eight weeks, on average, to complete their evaluation. The review process typically takes three to four months, depending on the nature of the project and the availability of reviewers. When reviews are received, the editor may ask for the author's response. We make every effort to ensure that editorial decisions are made in a timely manner.
