

HAVATZELET YAHIEL is a Kreitman Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Ben-Gurion Research Institute for the Study of Israel & Zionism at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev. She submitted her doctoral dissertation on "The Policy of the Israeli Government and State Authorities Regarding the Negev Bedouin: 1947 – 1989, and the Question of Indigeneity," at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She completed her MPA at the Harvard Kennedy School of Government after receiving the Israel Wexner Fellowship for excellence in the public sector. She holds B.A in Economy and LLB in Law from Tel-Aviv University.

Yahel was the Deputy to the Southern District Attorney (Civil Matters) at the Ministry of Justice in Israel, where she was also the founder and director of the Land Department. As a litigator, Yahel represented the State of Israel in various high profile court cases and was a member in many policy-making forums in her field. She also served as an advisor to the Goldberg Commission whose mission was to present a solution to the land and settlement conflicts between the State and the Bedouins.

Yahel is the author of several publications on Land rights, Indigenous rights and Negev Bedouin.
