

Dear Student,

Out of a commitment to the values of mutual respect and fairness, the University has set itself the goal of preventing sexual harassment among its employees and students.

The Prevention of Sexual Harassment Law of 1998 requires all organizations and public entities in Israel to instruct its employees and students on the subject of preventing sexual harassment.

The course for the prevention of sexual harassment is a tutorial that allows students to become acquainted with the Prevention of Sexual Harassment Law and explains in a simple manner what is currently defined as sexual harassment under the law.

The University's regulations on this subject can be accessed from the University homepage and appear in short form on posters scattered on bulletin boards throughout the campuses (Beer-Sheva, Sede Boqer, and Eilat). They also include the contact details of the Commissioner of Sexual Harassment Complaints and the Prevention of Sexual Harassment and her deputies.

This tutorial is defined as a "compulsory course" for all students in all degrees and in all fields of study at the University, including postdoc fellows.

Please read the instructions below in order to successfully complete the learning process.

This online course consists of two parts: a tutorial that introduces the principles of the Prevention of Sexual Harassment Law, and a final exam. The course should be taken once at the beginning of every degree, at all degree levels, and in all departments. The course must be completed during the first year of degree studies.

Registration for the course is carried out independently through the University's internet site:
