

DeepLomacy

Research Community

on Cultural-Digital-Public Diplomacy

Sharing knowledge, exchanging ideas, creating connections and opportunities

Call for researchers from the various disciplines interested in the fields of new diplomacies, public diplomacy, cultural diplomacy, digital diplomacy, science diplomacy, education diplomacy, health diplomacy, innovation diplomacy, culinary diplomacy to join the 'DeepLomacy' research community and network. When you join 'DeepLomacy' research community you become part of an international network of scholars, researchers, and practitioners. Join by entering the following link>>>>>

"DeepLomacy" is an international research community for the fields of cultural-digital-public diplomacy. It aims to create a cross-disciplinarian community, develop academic discourse, connect researchers, and promote and discover shared research opportunities. This collaboration, between the Cultural Diplomacy Forum of the Simon Veil research Center for Contemporary European studies at the Ben-Gurion University of the Negev and 'DiploMarket' by the Abba Eban Institute at the IDC Herzliya, endeavors to create a vibrant research community and network which will be designed for people with interest, mainly research interest, in the cultural-digital-public diplomacy triangle.

About the Research Community and Network:

The community cornerstones are the sharing of knowledge, exchanging ideas, and creating connections and opportunities among community members. These will be achieved through members' engagement and the growth of a collaborative and dynamic research community. Moreover, it will lead to:

1. Accessibility to advanced research done in the field, including theory and case studies, and sharing of existing knowledge (including research consultations, methodological approaches, research specialties, conferences, panels, articles, and analysis).
2. Establishing a global research community and networking. Community activities will foster connections between researchers and provide a vibrant network for researchers at different career stages. The community will encourage joint submissions to research calls, panels, and joint conferences.
3. As part of the innovative ecosystem (provided and hosted by 'DiploMarket' platform), it will allow access to professionals and experts through joint research initiatives and online meetings.
4. Within the community, research tools will be accessed and developed, including initial conceptualization tools, through a joint documentation project and database formulation, for the use of the community members in publications, follow-up research, or other necessities.

About the Cultural Diplomacy Forum:

The Cultural Diplomacy Forum of the Simon Veil research Center for Contemporary European studies at the Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, serves as a unique research arena for scholars, diplomats, and people interested in the field. The forum aims to bridge between the worlds of academia, diplomacy, and culture; To facilitate a common language, dialogue, and thereby to foster research, develop knowledge and practice in the fields of new diplomacies in general and cultural diplomacy in particular. The forum was established in 2019 and since then has led various research projects aimed to deepen the theoretical and practical knowledge in the field, alongside promoting accessibility and linkage between the research-academic arena, the diplomatic arena, and other actors in the field via conferences, panels, and meet-ups.

About 'DiploMarket':

DiploMarket ecosystem is a unique professional and social platform created for scholars, diplomats and stakeholders in the diplomatic arena. The DiploMarket initiative by the Abba Eban Institute for Diplomacy (AEI) is designed to tackle the current and future challenges of diplomacy and foreign affairs. As a first of its kind diplomatic social network, it also connects between leading practitioners and specialists, in order to explore areas of mutual interest, create partnerships, and share knowledge, tools and personal experience - all in ONE place. The Abba Eban Institute for International Diplomacy at the IDC, Herzliya, chaired by Ambassador Ron Prozor, highlights the need for innovative, effective, and proactive diplomatic infrastructure. As a "Do-tank", combining innovation, theory and practice, AEI is developing new approaches and tools for innovative diplomacy by integrating technology, in order to enhance its effectiveness.

Join Here

