

Dr. Amos Schurr

Dr. Amos Schurr is a Lecturer at the Department of Business Administration at the Guilford Glazer Faculty of Business and Management in Ben Gurion University, Israel. Dr. Schurr received his Ph.D. from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He also holds a BS in industrial engineering and MA (Cum Laude) in Behavioral sciences and management - human resource management and labor relations both from the Technion. Dr. Schurr conducts several research projects in the domain of organizational behavior. His primary interest is in social influence and the relationship between the individual and the organization. In addition, he conducts research on gender differences and the effect of competition on individuals and teams.