Bridging evidence to practice

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS:

Knowledge-to-Action:
Making evidence and knowledge actionable
to the public and policymakers

On average, it takes 17 years to get science into practice.

How can we shorten that timeline?

How do we get decision makers to use evidence?

We invite you to join this innovative course on concepts in the knowledge-to-action continuum: obtaining necessary evidence, disseminating it and implementing it in a broad perspective.

♦ Mostly independent learning, some guided sessions
♦ Taught in English
♦ Mondays afternoon (IST)
♦ In collaboration with University of Toronto's Dalla Lana School of Public Health.
♦ Three credits (נק"ז)

Who can apply?

♦ Advanced masters-level and doctoral-level students in public health, health systems and policy, and other health-related or public policy professions.

How do I apply?

♦ Applicants should submit their CV and a letter of intent to enroll in the course.
♦ Interviews will be conducted a few days following application submission.

Course Dates:
April 25-June 27, 2022
