

Dr. Kedar-Levy graduated from the Hebrew University, Jerusalem, in 1999, and joined Ben Gurion University in late 1998. His Ph.D. dissertation studied stability properties of the stock market, commonly known as “bubbles”. His research agenda involves the theoretical and empirical study of financial bubbles, and financial market anomalies. Being involved with high-technology management between 1987 and 2002 as analyst, CEO, and Director, some of his research and teaching interests concerned entrepreneurship in high-tech, and primarily with respect to risk appetite of entrepreneurs.

His articles are published in high-ranked journals, and presented in prestigious conferences of the Econometric Society, the Society for Financial Studies, the Strategic Management Society, and FMA. He serves as referee for the American Economic Review, the Journal of Economic Dynamics and Control, the Journal of Economics and Business, the Journal of International Money and Finance, among others. Dr. Kedar-Levy mentors a Ph.D. Student, Mr. Lior Gal, and two MA Thesis students, Mr. Arik Liberzon and Mrs. Ravit Rubinstein.

Dr. Kedar-Levy serves as consultant for financial institutions, as committee member of the Israeli Council for Higher Education, adjunct lecturer at the Hebrew University and Ono Academic College. In the past he served as Board member and member of the investment committee of a large retirement fund, as consultant to the Israeli Chief Scientist, and Director of the Honors MBA Program at BGU, among other business and academic activities.
