Women scientists who have just completed a PhD in the natural or exact sciences are eligible to apply.

The Weizmann Institute of Science oversees this national program, which funds outstanding women scientists who have attained postdoctoral fellowships at institutions overseas, as a key step toward a career in science.

The monetary prize is awarded based on merit only according to a proven track record of excellence - and is intended to supplement a standard postdoc salary given by the host institution.

The Weizmann Institute is awarding 10 awards up to $25,000 per year for three years.

Women who received their PhDs after Jan. 1, 2020* are eligible to apply.

* Exceptions are made for unusual circumstances. More details on the site.

Application deadline: May 1, 2021
