

Tenure-track Position at The Department of Communication Studies at Ben Gurion University of the Negev

The Department of Communication Studies at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences at Ben Gurion University of the Negev invites outstanding communication researchers who work in Science Communication or close fields and deal with environmental, climate, and related topics to apply for the position.

Hebrew-speaking communication scholars are encouraged to apply but the position is open to non-Hebrew speakers as well [we expect the candidate to be able to teach in Hebrew after a few years.]

Call for candidates closing date: February 1, 2025

Position starting date: October 1, 2025 [Subject to the fulfillment of the position and the approval of the position by the relevant authorities at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev]

How to Apply:

To have the application considered, please select the link below and submit the following:

- Cover letter that includes highlights of your profile
- Curriculum vitae (CV)
- Research statement that outlines main areas of current and future research
- Teaching statement that outlines teaching philosophy and areas
- Names, affiliations and contact info of three-four referees (one from the supervisor, at least two “independent”)
- Two writing samples from recent research publications

Letters of reference will be requested from applicants selected for interviews.

The rank will be determined according to the selected applicant’s experience and achievements.

Please send all files to:

noamti@bgu.ac.il

For more information about the department see: <https://in.bgu.ac.il/en/humsos/comm-Studies/Pages/about.aspx>