Ben Gurion University of the Negev
The faculty of Social Science

Syllabus

Education Department 2014-2015
Course name: Evaluation Tools for the Educational Counselor - B
Course number: Fall semester: 12928991; Spring semester: 12929011
Lecturer:

Evaluation Tools for the Educational Counselor – B is the second-year core course in the training program of educational counseling. The course focuses on the development of students' professional identity as educational counselors. The course is process-oriented, and focuses on personal, interpersonal, and group processes that incorporate students' experiences in educational system, in order to facilitate exploration and understandings concerning educational counseling and the identity of each student as a counselor. In this course, students conduct and write their final project of the training program.

The content of the course meetings is not pre-determined in this course. Content and reading material are chosen by students and instructors according to the relevant issue among each group of students at different times during the course.

The course is not graded. Since the most significant learning takes place during the course meetings, participation and completion of all assignments are essential and mandatory. A student who misses more than two meetings during the year will not be able to finish the course.

The content of the course meetings is not pre-determined in this course. Content and reading material are chosen by students and instructors according to the relevant issue among each group of students at different times during the course.

Reading material is not selected in advance, but rather according to the relevant contents and processes that become relevant along the course meetings.