This message is intended for M.Sc. students and faculty members (especially M.Sc. thesis advisers).

As part of the Shnaton updates of the last years, as part of the requirements for thesis submission, there is an added requirement to give a seminar lecture on the thesis results (without point credit).

This lecture can be given in any of the department’s seminars (Noncommutative analysis, AGNT, STARS, PET,...). If there is no relevant seminar that matches the thesis topic, an ad-hoc seminar can be organized.

Please make sure that the seminar lecture was announced in an email message or in the seminar website and in particular, the title and abstract were included in a manner that will allow their submission to the faculty’s administration. Seminar lectures at other universities can be used to fulfill the requirement if they were announced as detailed above.
