

Seminar (and Student Seminar) 206-13531 – 2 credits

Syllabus

This is a required course in which the students receives a topic covered by several scientific papers following different approaches. The student writes a seminar paper constructed of scientific background, methods, results, discussion, and conclusions; submits an abstract and list of bibliographic references; and prepares a presentation before an audience. All staff members participate in providing topics and supervising the stages of writing and presentation

Bibliography

Bibliography will be given by the guiding faculty member.

Course Requirements

2 hr lecture